

Trashion Show at the 2009 SDTF New Years Gala

SDTF Gala Trashion show, where sustainable design takes front and center. Versatile styles infused with brilliant color, fluid fabrics, divinely inspired accessories, which all add fresh appeal, ripe with rich texture in these innovative inspirations.

Welcome to our world - where green is always the new black.

Trashion Show at the 2009 SDTF New Years Gala

Outfit: Plastic shopping bag vest and dog food pants

Model: I. A. M. GAMbol

Description: What better way to show your appreciation for man's best friend than to clad yourself in kibble wrappers?

Treat yourself and never go begging for compliments in this contemporary ensemble that just begs for you to sit and stay.

Outfit: Silk necktie skirt in hula motif with plastic bag handle hat and tiny bubble necklace filled with miniature conch shell – not garlic

Model: Dena Pele

Description: Tie one on in this tropical delight that is just plain fun to wear.

Straight from the fashion houses of Givinchy and Balmain in Paris to Saville Row in London anyone can sway their hips in high style. Although a Windsor it is knot.

The crowning glory of this piece is the hat. Masterful use of plastic grocery bag tops makes Sunday-go-to-meeting crown an everyday occurrence. It's clear to see she definitely has a handle on her wardrobe.

A bow tie miniskirt version is available by special order.

Trashion Show at the 2009 SDTF New Years Gala

Outfit: Bike Tire Tube Dress accessorized by a chrome and lube finish chain necklace

Model: Beavarina DeRailer

Description: Perfect for town or country this iconoclastic design is not only glamorous and sensual it functions exceptionally in all terrain and furthermore it is impervious to mud.

Any time or any place is perfect to shift gears and ratchet the sprockets in this fun frock made especially for the gnarly goddess in all good girls.

Outfit: Pink lampshade top with layered newspaper skirt

Model: Shady Times

Description: Stop the presses! Watts this? Extra! Extra! Read all about it (while you still can)!

News that is not fit to print is certainly fit to wear and especially so since a reading lamp is built in.

As the headline above the fold is rapidly disappearing and giving way to the world wide web it is easy to see why so many discerning women are clamoring to have one of these festively serious skirts in their closets.

Ever versatile and consummately functional when this hot number is finally finished – just line the bird cage with it.

Trashion Show at the 2009 SDTF New Years Gala

Outfit: Mini-blind sheath

Model: Fay Lanx

Description: Turn heads in this explicit definition of a blind date.

Easy to be blinded by the light.

But you can level the playing field in this Venetian inspired classic.

No need to draw the blinds since this diaphanous dress adjusts easily to adapt to any contours.

Outfit: Shopping bag skirt with matching bolero top

Model: Carrie Sachs

Description: Not your typical bag lady.

This one is right on Target and spreads Goodwill wherever she goes.

It is particularly timeless since it will take several hundred of year for this little ditty to decompose.

Cheap at half the price since at 20 cents a bag this is a million dollar ensemble on the Seattle exchange.

Never be compromised again when asked that daunting question: "Paper or plastic?". The choice is clear.

Trashion Show at the 2009 SDTF New Years Gala

Outfit: Levis skirt with matching denim jacket and complimentary cowgirl boots

Model: Jeanne Redux

Description: Ride em cowgirl!

This riveting design will make Dale Evans twitter in her grave.

No more digging in your purse for your cell phone, wallet, tissue, lipstick, keys or water bottle since there is a built-in pocket for simply everything

For every gal who wants to be quick on the draw – this two piece enchilada is simply a must-have.

Outfit: Robot made of plastic jugs and bottles, duct pipe and festooned with matching duct tape

Model: Cormac the Incredible, or as he prefers to be known, Klondike 53226

Description: Although batteries are not included, this modern buddy comes with a special adaptor that can power on solar or bio-diesel.

Eco-companions can be programmed for your needs and desires and are catching on quickly since we all know that finding a soul mate these days it pretty much like finding a parking place – they are either taken or handicapped.

This robotic slave can screw, pound nails, get lids off jars, burn toast, brew coffee, fold the laundry, take out the garbage and answer the phone.

Who needs people? Just dial Klondike 5-3226.

Trashion Show at the 2009 SDTF New Years Gala

This was our first, and we hope not our last, Trashion show.

The Sustainable Development Task Force hopes you have enjoyed these scintillating designs, which give new meaning to the phrase “embodied energy”.